Green Street Properties

A dynamic leader, Amy Merritt Swick's accomplishments have made her company more profitable and Atlanta greener.

The vice president of Green Street Properties, Swick is described as the best of the best. During her four years at Green Street, as a minority owner of the company, her roles have included green consulting, development management, leadership of financial matters, and business development.

During the last year, Swick has helped execute the company's merger with Jamestown Properties. She has also played a pivotal role in helping launch a green consulting line of business. She created the company's proprietary selection criteria for comprehensive LEED portfolio feasibility studies and is now advising clients on repositioning distressed properties.

Focusing on her passion for walkable, urban neighborhoods and environmental sustainability, she has become involved with Midtown Alliance and its creation of the 15th Street Plaza, Midtown's newest park. She also volunteers extensively with the Urban Land Institute, serving on ULI's sustainability committee and its young leaders group steering committee.
