DINING NEWS

With the arrival of spring, our anticipation for imminent restaurant openings rises like sap. While new spots from local talent are launching at a cautious pace, the lineup of confirmed restaurants certainly seems more ambitious than during the last couple years. And the rumors for what's ahead next year and beyond sound even more impressive. Here's a look at what we know for sure and what we're hearing whispers about:

Rumors and speculations:

—Speaking of Old Fourth Ward, Jamestown Properties and Green Street Properties hope to finally close on the long-simmering City Hall East project, according to Ken Edelstein on Green Building Chronicle. The mixed-use space will begin by opening commercial spaces, including restaurants.
